Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to add my comments to the Tunney Act "public input" regarding the proposed settlement of the Microsoft case. I am unhappy with the settlement in its current form. The remedies proposed contain loopholes, and to assume that they will not be exercised by Microsoft to the detriment of their competitors is naive, turning a blind eye both to the evidence of Microsoft's prior behavior and to their behavior in response to the previous settlement.

I would favor a settlement that imposed strict separation of Microsoft's products ("unbundling"), without exception. The settlement before the Court now does not do this in any meaningful, enforceable way.

Sincerely,

Nate Willis
